

Tony Thinking Aloud cx

Hospitals are places we prefer to avoid – as you may know I have just had a time in one.

I experienced the best care and attention you can imagine.

So, think – I have commented in the Musings over the weeks many times that we are all here to help each other- that is the essence of hospital care.

My thinking now is about the chaps who were there in the ward with me. Percy who was younger than me having to make a decision about his ongoing medical care. Bob, much younger, having to spend a week in the ward in preparation for an operation.

This certainly is a time which can be identified with prayer, if putting such things into the Hand of God is your understanding.

All this and Lady's Day at Royal Ascot, another concern for each other. One feels there is not another hat left in the shops. Everyone concerned for each other in case of rain! Today time for the men in another direction – it is forecast to be so very hot tomorrow – will the lads be able to come without their tailcoats!

Concern again for one another...and concern for the Queen who is sadly having to watch from Windsor Castle. But there are other royals who can step in with thoughtful support.

I am reflecting on how we should help one another – this is how things should be in God's world

The names of patients above have been changed